□Play Style□ This is a game that does not make you follow one course, but allows you to freely venture around and, when you get stuck, you can go back to where you failed and try again. I will give a few specific examples. As seen from the above screenshot, while exploring the areas in the bottom left, if you talk to the Black Cobra, then you can go to the area just above and go to the right. If you go to the right just as the Black Cobra is talking, you will go in the lane that begins, but if you go back and talk to him, then you can go to the other lane. However, when I tried this, it was not shown in a clear way. In addition, when you are getting close to completing the main quest, going back and then finishing the 'random encounter' will not be enough. If you take it as a quest mission, there will be the chance of a difficult boss appearing. I will say that if you fail a quest mission, then you cannot finish it in one go. In addition, if you fail at boss battles, you need to return to the previous town and re-start from the mission where you failed. (Because it is not easy to back up.) □Misc.□ While exploring, you can ride a lot of types of monsters, including monsters of the first level and even higher. The monsters you encounter include Fighting monsters, Magic monsters, Gold monsters, and Bandit monsters. Even in the case of Magic monsters, some will have rare items. When you get these rare items, you can go to the blacksmith, and there will be various craftable weapons, armor, and magic. Crafting items is a skill that starts from level 1. You can start crafting at the smith at any time, but since you need to obtain materials, you have to craft in a hurry if you want to. You can craft weapons and armor according to the level of the monster that you have killed. The amount of crafting resources you will acquire after killing monsters will vary depending on the rarity of the monster. Rare monsters will have a much larger bonus. When you complete the crafting, you will acquire a rarity medal and craft goods. The craft goods can be acquired again by talking to the blacksmith, or you can sell it bff6bb2d33
